Chapel Hill 6 Feb. 1840

My dear Sir,

The difficulties to which your last letter related, were as I intimated in my note by the return mail, in the process of adjustment, before your communication was received. They have since been arranged, to the entire satisfaction of parties. A course of Lectures on Experimental Philosophy, is now delivering, which I hope, and have reason to believe, from what I hear, will be alike creditable to the Professor and the institution. I have been prevented owing to a thickening of invitations from being present at either of the Lectures, as yet.

I expect to make a visit to your city on Wednesday, next, and hope to have an interview with the Ex. Com. & yourself before I return.

Yours very sincerely,

L. J. Swain.
